Taking Care of Sick People with COVID-19 Illness at Home

Having a Sick Person in the home

Many people who get sick with coronavirus (COVID-19) can be safely cared for at home. If possible, have the sick person stay in one room, or physically away from other people in the household. Keep them at least 1 metre (an arm's length) away from others.

Wearing a mask

Have the sick person wear a mask, or cloth face covering, when they are around other people, including family members. Caregivers should wear a mask, or cloth face covering, and disposable gloves when touching any items used by the sick person.

Are you pregnant?

During the COVID-19 pandemic, it's more important than ever to protect yourself and your baby.

Pregnant women are at risk of severe flu. Influenza vaccination given during pregnancy protects both you and your baby for several months after birth.

Ask your healthcare provider whether a flu vaccine is right for you.

If you experience any of the following symptoms, seek immediate medical care:

Fever or cough that improves but then returns or worsens

Loss of speech or mobility

Difficulty breathing or shortness of breath

Pain or pressure in the chest or abdomen

Dizziness or confusion

Seizures

Severe muscle pain

Not urinating

Decreased or no movement of your baby

Because the flu vaccine doesn't protect you from COVID-19, follow these precautions:

Clean your hands frequently

Keep at least 1 metre distance from others

Wear a mask when 1 metre distance from others is not possible

Cough or sneeze into a bent elbow or a tissue

Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth

Avoid crowded public gatherings or activities

Open window
